LETTER FROM THE CD

Dear Delegates,

My name is Kaelyn Young, and I am a third-year studying Atmospheric and Oceanic Sciences, with a minor in Korean. I've been doing MUN for four years, and I'm thrilled to be your crisis director for "Invincible." I absolutely love animated shows, and Invincible quickly became one of my favorites. The show questions what it truly means to be a superhero, redefining the concepts of good and evil. Each character is carefully crafted, from their personality to their ulterior motives. At the end of the day, every hero and villain is an individual with strengths and struggles, drawing parallels to the real-world experiences we encounter every day. It makes you reflect on how our world is structured, while also immersing you in a universe with surprises around every corner. The strong tone and diction make you empathize with the characters, making it more than just a superhero show. I wish to see creativity and thought when it comes to this committee, as well as respect for your other delegates. Reflect on who your characters are, and what they might do with their abilities and experiences. I'm so excited to meet you all and hear your ideas in this committee.

Best of luck!

Kaelyn Young (she/her)

HISTORY OF TOPIC

BEGINNINGS

The Invincible universe is just like any other, except here, the Earth is riddled with individuals holding great powers. Superheroes emerged worldwide in the 20th century, largely due to scientific and technological advancements resulting from government-led experiments, as well as mutations, alien powers, and a variety of other factors. In the beginnings of superheroism, an extraterrestrial being by the name of Omni-Man came to Earth from the alien Viltrumite Empire and declared that he was there to protect the planet and people of Earth. He was immediately received with overwhelming love from most civilians and admiration as he defended the citizens of Earth from everything ranging from sea monsters to bank robbers. Superheroes, including Omni-Man, fight valiantly to fend off dangerous alien invasions, rebuild decimated landscapes after disasters, and develop cutting-edge technology. But where there is good, there is also evil. Supervillains, and also, not-so-super villains, loot, steal, and take over governments, whether that be with man-power, weapons, or enhanced abilities.

To support a fight against these forces, heroes all over the world join groups, some government-sanctioned, to solve a variety of issues threatening the safety of humanity. In the United States, the government established the Global Defense Agency, or GDA, in the mid-20th century after Omni-Man arrived to preserve national security by collaborating with superheroes and scientists to develop advanced technology and protect its citizens.

The GDA created the Guardians of the Globe- a team of superheroes on call to respond to international emergencies, made up of seven heroes: Green Ghost, Red Rush, Martian Man, Aquarus, Darkwing, War Woman, and The Immortal. They primarily deal in larger-scale global threats, leaving petty crime to be handled by others. The GDA wanted Omni-Man to join the Guardians of the Globe, but he refused to join, wanting to preserve his freedom to choose his own battles.

Omni-Man possesses a multitude of powers, so much so that he's the most powerful man on Earth, no questions asked. But to the outside world, he's Nolan Grayson, a normal middle-aged man and husband of Debbie Grayson, a real estate agent. The two have a son, Mark Grayson, who is in high school. Nolan did not know if Mark would inherit his Viltrumite powers, but they abruptly appeared one day when eighteen-year-old Mark realized he was a lot stronger than usual, accidentally flinging a garbage bag into outer space. Thus, Nolan began to teach his son about his newfound powers and where they came from- the Viltrum Empire. Mark idolized his father and worked hard every day in their training sessions, but also practiced in secret to become a vigilante against his father's wishes, as Nolan wanted Mark to lead a normal life as a high-schooler.

Vigilante Mark Grayson, unaffiliated with any law enforcement agency, began with street-level crimes after choosing the name "Invincible" for himself. He had run-ins with the Teen Team, a group of teenage superheroes whom he would help out or call on for assistance from time to time. The Teen Team's primary objective was to handle smaller threats before they joined larger, more dangerous superhero organizations. It was composed of Robot, the team leader, Atom Eve, Rex Splode, Dupli-Kate, and Shrinking-Rae. Through seeing each other at school every day and occasionally fighting evil together, Mark and Eve became friends, and later, Eve became the first outsider to learn Mark's true identity. Mark would then go on to officially fight crime, leaving the shadows of his hiding, and slowly started working with the GDA, after being called upon by its president, Cecil Stedman. But as Mark gained more control over his abilities, his desire to learn about his heritage on his father's side only grew stronger, directing his attention to the Viltrumite Empire.

THE VILTRUMITE EMPIRE

The planet Viltrum, home to aliens called Viltrumites, is the heart of the Viltrumite Empire. They share very similar DNA to humans, and although they outwardly appear to be the same, Viltrumites lack what some may consider the most human trait of all- they do not feel empathy.

The Viltrumites are not a peaceful alien race. They were warriors who killed each other until the strongest remained. They decided that their ways were superior to those of other alien races, and they sent acclaimed warriors to each planet in the galaxy to conquer and annex their fallen planet to the Viltrumite Empire. For the most part, this strategy worked. The Viltrumites took over and wiped out entire civilizations of creatures when they did not comply with Viltrumite rule. They were a formidable threat to many, and this led to the establishment of the Coalition of Planets, which is made up of multiple alien civilizations forming an interstellar alliance. The Coalition of Planets was formed specifically in retaliation of the Viltrumite reign of terror and is a diplomatic organization that acts as a galactic defense against large-scale threats, sharing intelligence amongst its planet members. Thus, planets were vary of a Viltrumite invasion.

Though, unbeknownst to almost everyone, there was a Viltrumite on Earth. The strongest man on Earth. Omni-Man.

OMNI MAN’S WEB OF LIES

When it was discovered that Guardians of the Globe were massacred at their headquarters, pandemonium broke out. Someone with extreme power had to have killed them, as the Guardians were amongst the strongest of the global superheroes. The GDA was on the case, along with Damien Darkblood, a demon detective who wants to leave Hell, and the only way he can is to help humans on Earth.

Cecil Stedman had a hunch. He knew it had to be none other than Nolan Grayson, or Omni-Man. Stedman, a mastermind, deduced this fact from the total slaughter of the Guardians- only Omni-Man possessed the strength to do it. But the only thing Cecil couldn’t figure out was the motive.

Omni-Man wasn’t like the rest, as most Viltrumites immediately conquer their assigned planet, while he instead spent 20 years helping Earth and building a family. Nolan Grayson lied to his wife and son, and when Mark Grayson received his powers, Nolan began to train him. Nolan lied about the truth of who the Viltrumites were, saying that he is there to protect Earth, and hid the fact that he killed the Guardians of the Globe. He hid his suit, stained with the blood of the members of the Guardians of the Globe, and asked Art Rosenbaum, a tailor for all superhero suits, for a new one. Nolan’s wife eventually found his stained suit, and through sleuthing with Art’s help, Debbie Grayson and Art figured out that Nolan killed the Guardians. This information shocked her to her core. She saw her reality crumble because the man she had known and loved for 20 years was a mask for a liar and a murderer.

Cecil Stedman knew about Nolan’s betrayal, but he couldn’t find a way to prove it until Damien had cracked the case with evidence. Instead of freeing him, Cecil banishes him to Hell for fear of creating mass hysteria if the world found out that Omni-Man had murdered their greatest superheroes.

Three people on Earth knew without a doubt that Nolan was guilty. When Nolan knew his lies were catching up to him, he knew he had to reach Mark first, before anyone could tell him the truth.

INVINCIBLE VS OMNI-MAN

Mark Grayson, raised as half-human, half-Viltrumite, was never told of the true ways of his father’s people. He had recently been dumped by his now ex-girlfriend Amber Bennett, and was living his life as normal as he could, oblivious to what was coming. Omni-Man wanted to be the first to tell Mark because he knew that the lie was about to be revealed, but he hoped that Mark was exactly as he had trained him to be- not a human, but a future Viltrumite- an emotionless soldier for the Empire.

The GDA raced against Omni-Man to find Invincible and be the one to tell him the truth about his father, but they were no match for Nolan, who discovered Mark first in rural Chicago with Eve. Eve senses that Nolan needs to have a private word with his son, and she excuses herself before Omni-Man takes Mark and flies up into the sky, explaining the truth of the Viltrumite Empire and his reasons for being on Earth.

Surprisingly to Nolan, Mark was both devastated and enraged by his father’s confession of his heritage and true reason for being on Earth. His father wasn’t there to help anyone. He was there to take over the planet for the Viltrumite Empire. The mixture of immense shock and betrayal produced an immense rage within Mark, culminating in a physical, super-powered battle between father and son.

Mark had no idea of the true extent of his abilities, but his emotional thinking led him to use what he could of his Viltrumite powers. The battle began in the rural areas of Illinois, with Nolan predictably throwing most of the punches, trying to convince Mark that the Viltrumite way was the only way- the correct way. He talked of the inadequacy of humanity, citing the uselessness of empathy. Scorning humans’ short life styles and corrupt political environments, Nolan attempted to persuade Mark that Viltumite rule could help. However, Mark now knew that this “help” meant completely controlling the planet and killing those who resisted.

Enraged, Mark asked Nolan what the past 20 years of his life meant, what his family meant. Unfazed, Nolan remarked that he saw his wife Debbie as nothing more than a pet. Onlookers to this battle, the world watched as Mark stood firm, telling his father that he would never join the Viltrumite Empire and that he would fight for humanity himself.

And so they fought, flying over the city of Chicago, their punches broadcast on news channels for the world to see. Their battle was destructive and tore up the civilian infrastructure. Omni-Man’s unmatched strength decimated buildings, tore up streets, and leveled apartments. In the end, Omni-Man beat his own son to the brink of death and left Earth. Mark was taken to the hospital, where he miraculously recovered with the GDA's advanced medical technology.

CURRENT SITUATION

The world is shaken up with the aftermath of the fight. Nowadays, Mark is grappling with the fact that his father lied to him his entire life. He wants to use his powers for good and save the world, despite his father's intentions. However, he also wants to lead a normal life by going to college and having adventures with his closest friends, Will and Eve. Mark knows he's supposed to be this great hero, and intends to figure out what his path forward is.

The rest of humanity, heroes and villains, are now coming together to help rebuild Chicago. The destruction of the city has displaced millions of people, overflowing homeless shelters. Omni-Man flew into buildings, scrambled sidewalks, and leveled skyscrapers. Not only were homes lost, but people's places of work were too. Many people are temporarily out of a job. The streets are flooded, and children go without food and shelter. The cold of Chicago is leaving people with pneumonia and more illnesses; hospitals cannot keep up. Chicago does not have enough resources to rebuild on its own. They need help from people, the government, and superheroes.

Above all that, crime still runs rampant. Criminals have taken this opportunity to loot and steal what is left. Banks have been robbed, food has been stolen, and what's left of stores and malls is gone. Then, some use their powers for evil. Villains have taken control of what is left of Chicago. Since emergency institutions are swamped attempting to rescue people and provide the little resources they have, the crime rate has shot up. These villains are not only from Earth, but also, at times, alien races that like to invade Earth for resources. Although this does not occur often, it is still a threat to look out for and safeguard against.

Omni-Man's absence must also be taken into consideration. A Viltrumite leaving his post is unheard of, and the Viltrumite Empire will be hunting down Omni-Man. Since he fled Earth, Omni-Man will now be hiding in the last corners of the universe to avoid the wrath of his people. However, once the Viltrumites find Omni-Man, Earth is the next target, because Omni-Man failed to conquer it, showing the rest of the universe that the Viltrumite Empire might be weak and willing to let a civilization go. The Viltrumites will do anything to remain in control of the universe, and Earth will not be a failure.

And thus, you are Earth's last remaining hope. Mark has called his closest advisors and fellow superhero friends to band together and create a committee to help determine a plan of action in the wake of Omni-Man's carnage. You must put aside your differences and work together to help those in need. You must remain vigilant in what is to come, whether that be villain attacks, alien invasion, or the Viltrumite Empire's impending emergence to conquer Earth. The public wants to be protected and safe, and Mark wants Chicago to rebuild and Earth to remain secure in the future. You must learn to be... Invincible.

QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER

- ◉ What steps need to be taken to rebuild Chicago? What are the political, economic, and social aspects? How will you work with the government to ensure a smooth process?
- ◉ What are your personal strengths? How can you work with others to aid those in Chicago?
- ◉ What are the possible limitations that might be in place when doing a reconstruction to this magnitude?
- ◉ What international or intergalactic allies might we have that can be of use in this situation, and in the future? How will you solve the problem of alien invasions on a global scale?
- ◉ Should we think ahead to what might happen when the Viltrumites realize Omni-Man has left his post?

CHARACTER DOSSIER

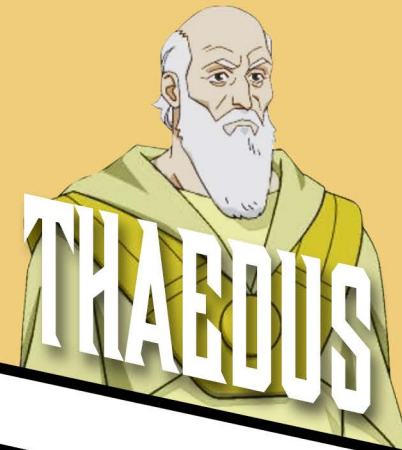

ATOM EVE

Eve Wilkins isn't the average teenager. She's Atom Eve, a superhero who used to work with the Teen Team, and can manipulate atoms by will. While working hard in high school, she saves the world from time to time. Unfortunately, Eve is also battling events in her personal life. Her long-term boyfriend, Rex, has been cheating on her with their fellow ex-Teen Team member, Dupli-Kat. Eve can use her powers to construct buildings, create food, and move resources. Additionally, her parents are not supportive of her being a superhero. While well-intentioned, they can be harsh when all Eve wants is to help people. Eve's top priority is to rebuild Chicago and ensure that its citizens do not pay the price of any superhero conflict, despite those who bring her down.

ALLEN THE ALIEN

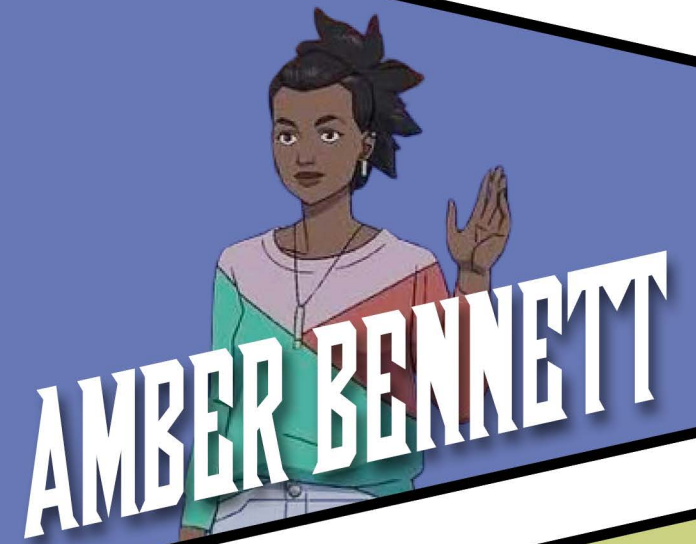

Allen the Alien is a Unopan, who was created to help replenish his race and defend against Viltrumites after they were almost eradicated by the Viltrum Empire. Unfortunately, he was ineffective in battling Viltrumites. He was then elected to the Coalition of Planets as an evaluation officer to search the galaxy for a hero able to defeat the Viltrumites. After accidentally reaching Earth, he found Mark, a half-Viltrumite who does not destroy and conquer planets, but tries to save them. After realizing Mark's father, Omni-Man, had left his post on Earth, he knew something interesting was different, as Viltrumites normally never back down. Viltrumites are trying to take over the galaxy, killing all those who oppose. The Coalition needs Viltrumites to help defeat the Viltrumites. Allen's goal is to recruit Mark and possibly his father to save the galaxy against the Viltrum Empire.

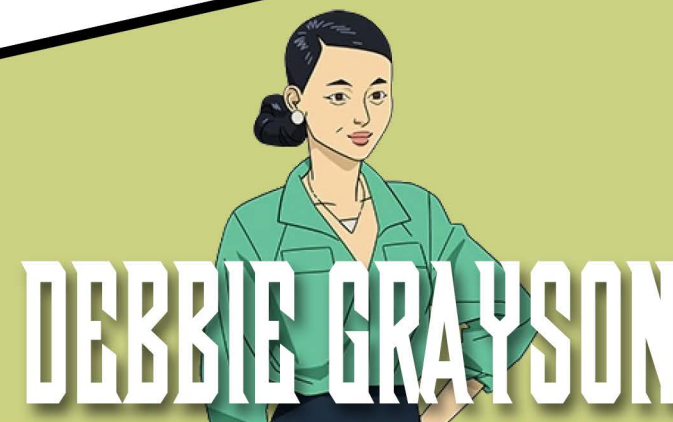

THAEDUS

Thaедus is the leader of the Coalition of Planets, a group dedicated to stopping Viltrumite Rule. Thaедus was born a Viltrumite and is the only known defect from the empire. His powers include slowed aging, flight, near invulnerability, increased speed, immense strength, regenerative healing, and super stamina. He leads with passion, known as the Great Thaедus, but he can be risky when the reward is high. Thaедus has many connections to alien races who trust him to help cease the expansion of the Viltrumites. In light of Omni-Man's destruction of Chicago, he sees an opportunity to reach Invincible to find a Viltrumite ally. He wants to help rebuild Chicago, while also forming connections that will aid in the overall halt of the Viltrumite Empire.

Amber Bennett is a social justice advocate and high school student. Although she does not have superpowers, she helps the world in any way she can. From volunteering in soup kitchens to calling for social justice, Amber is determined to make the world a better place. She dreams of going to college and leading a life she can be truly proud of. After a rocky start to their relationship, Amber has learned that her boyfriend, Mark Grayson, is a superhero, Invincible. Amber wants what is best for Mark, but she must also listen to her heart and do what is best for herself. They end up breaking up. Being from two vastly different worlds was too difficult. She launched herself into advocacy work, and she has trusted friends in the City Council of Chicago. Amber's goal is to help rebuild Chicago by volunteering in impoverished areas, as well as building new and closer relationships with her friends and family.

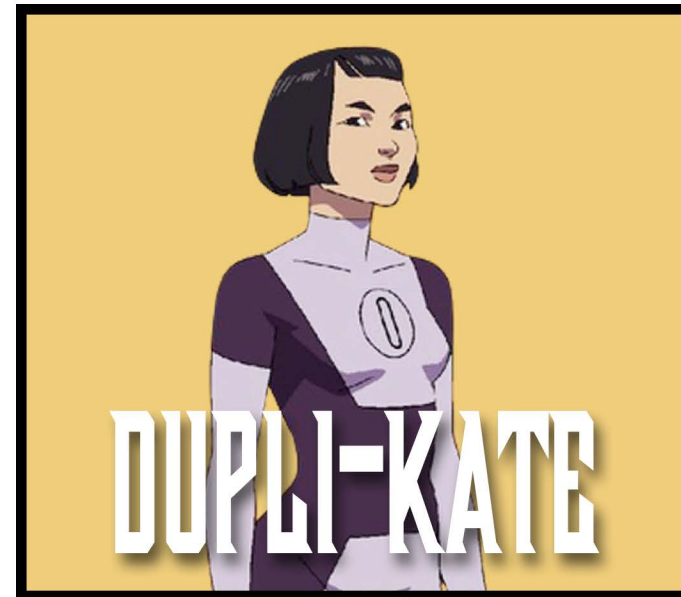

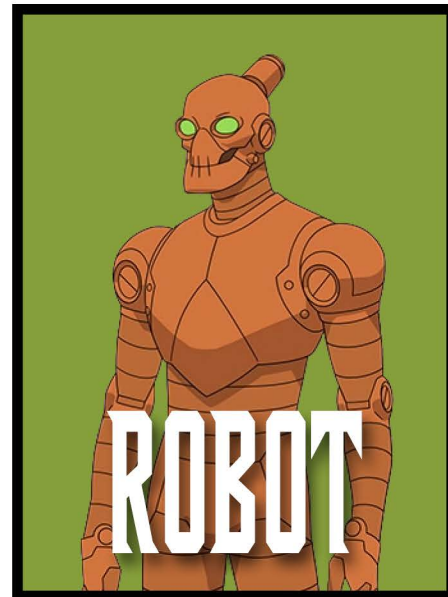

AMBER BENNETT

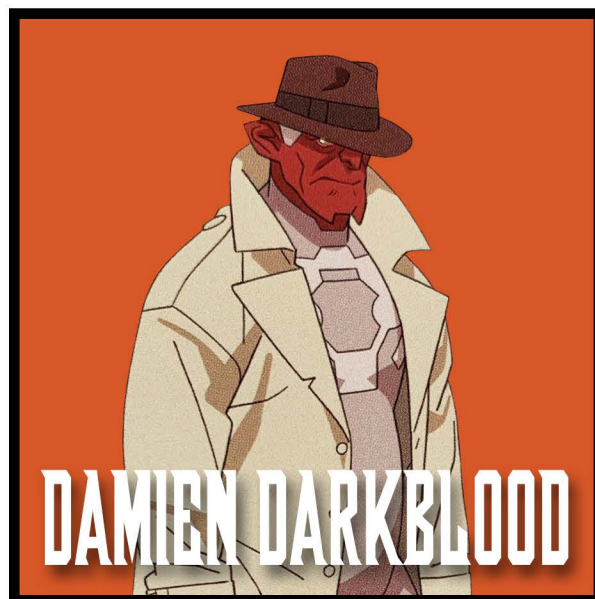

DEBBIE GRAYSON

Debbie Grayson is the wife of Nolan Grayson, or Omni-Man, and the mother of Mark Grayson. She is a steadfast woman who works as a real estate agent and is phenomenal at her job; she has deep connections in the marketing sector. Debbie led an affectionate life with her husband, Nolan, raising Mark to be a strong young man. She's grappling with the fact that the past 20 years with her husband have been a lie. After beating their son half to death and calling her nothing but a pet, Debbie's relationship with Nolan is over. Debbie, the strong woman she is, is learning how to live in this new reality. As a mother, she is deeply worried about her son and the title he carries, but is determined to support him on his journey to make the world a better place. Debbie's goal is to help people with her real estate skills to find new homes after their homes were destroyed, while also watching out for herself and Mark in the dangerous world they live in.

Robot, former leader of Teen Team and member of the new Guardians of the Globe, is an artificial intelligence weapon determined to work for the greater good. Unbeknownst to anyone, he is a truly human scientist born with extreme deformities and health issues. He developed a robot body to fulfill his ambitions to help the world and lead as normal a life as he could, if you call that normal. His super intelligence made him a great leader of the Teen Team and a powerful member of the new Guardians of the Globe, and his tactical abilities helped to defeat the toughest of villains. Robot fell in love with Monster Girl and employed the Mauler Twins to transfer his consciousness to a human body. He emerged as Ruddy Connors, a human with the mind of his former self. Ruddy is learning how to live as a normal human being; he must now face emotions such as fear and humility, while trying new foods, like hamburgers and fries. He must learn to keep up his role on the Guardians of the Globe and use his technological abilities to help rebuild Chicago.

Dupli-Kate, a former member of the Teen Team and current member of the new Guardians of the Globe, is a superhero who can duplicate herself. All of her duplicates can communicate telepathically and can enhance her strength. Dupli-Kate is confident, assertive, and a great teammate. With her ability, she can multitask in high-stress situations, but also feels a loss in her sense of self. Kate struggles to connect with people, often keeping emotional distance from others. Kate has a brother, Paul, who is also a superhero who can duplicate. They are close, and Paul is very protective of his sister. In rebuilding Chicago, Dupli-Kate wants to help the Guardians of the Globe, while also helping with construction due to her duplicating abilities.

Damien Darkblood is a former demon detective who must pursue justice to redeem his own soul. After defying Cecil Stedman's demand to stop investigating Omni-Man, he was exiled back to hell. However, he struck a deal with the devil to give him one more chance on Earth. Darkblood is very composed and comes off as blunt with his flat-toned voice. He does not understand the intricacies of human communications, but is a remorseful demon who seeks justice. As a demon, he has the power to enhance his senses to reveal supernatural elements in crimes. He can teleport and reveal hidden truths about people. The Chicago Police Department has begun working with him, as they trust in his supernatural abilities. Darkblood is going to use his last chance on Earth to help rebuild societal elements of Chicago by taking down villains from the inside out.

The Immortal is a superhero who has lived for centuries by gaining immortality, seeing the rise and falls of civilizations. In the 20th century, Immortal decided to don a cap and become a superhero for the greater good. He was a member of the original Guardians of the Globe, the only one to survive Omni-Man's massacre. Although he is strong-willed and resilient, the Immortal's gift of immortality is becoming more of a curse. He lives time on a different level, not being able to truly love someone, as he outlives them all. The Immortal must come to terms with his endless existence and learn what he wants in this constantly shifting world. The Immortal wants to lead the new Guardians of the Globe and keep the city safe as they rebuild.

Doc Seismic can generate and release extreme shockwaves. He is very intelligent, designs intricate plans, and creates powerful earthquakes. Doc Seismic can even speak to deep, molten Earthly creatures through seismic vibrations. He is a seismologist who disdains society, feeling a deep oppression over the usage of the Earth's properties- rocks. Using his twisted form of empathy for Earth to justify his crimes, he dismantles stone monuments. His goal is to restore the Earth to its natural state while unearthing American monuments. Often frustrated, Doc Seismic is witty and enjoys bantering with his foes. Doc Seismic seeks to accumulate personal power and become an anti-imperialistic tectonic god. However, in the wake of Chicago's destruction, he sees an opportunity. Doc Seismic's goal is to rebuild with his vision of non-steel structures.

Titan, a husband and father, possesses super strength and can transform his body into stone. He once worked for a crime lord named Machine Head, but wanted out. Titan enlisted the help of Invincible and the Guardians of the Globe to defeat Machine Head. Little did Invincible know that Titan's true motive was to become Chicago's new crime lord. Once Machine Head was defeated, Titan became the leader of Chicago's crime syndicate. However, Titan knows what it's like to live an impoverished life and decided to help families in situations like his. After Chicago's destruction, Titan wants to utilize his connections within Chicago's mafia circle and crime syndicate to assist those in need.

ART ROSENBAUM

Art Rosenbaum, a man in his late sixties, is a tailor who creates suits for superheroes. He is incredibly talented and designed costumes for both Omni-Man and his son, Invincible. Rosenbaum is generally easy-going and genuinely cares for the heroes he creates for, often helping them with their personal issues. Rosenbaum became close friends with Omni-Man, occasionally going fishing or grabbing a beer with him. After Debbie visited Rosenbaum, revealing that Omni-Man had killed the Guardians of the Globe, he was devastated, drinking away his grief. Rosenbaum's goal is to help pick up the broken pieces of society, as well as the heroes whose lives were upturned. He has connections to powerful people in high society, especially the Global Defense Agency, due to his work with superheroes. He will use these connections to help rebuild Chicago from the shambles.

The Mauler twins are genius criminal scientists. One Mauler learned how to transfer his consciousness into a clone of himself. Now, they are telepathically connected as they always think the same thing. The two are overconfident and opinionated, but get frustrated in the face of adversity. The twins are not driven by malicious intent, but rather by an ambitious mindset to revolutionize science. The twins do openly bicker with each other, but when it comes down to it, they work as a great team. They've got kind hearts, but their criminal work has consistently landed them back in prison every time after they're broken out by clientele in need of their scientific expertise. The Mauler Twins are working on their ultimate plan to escape prison and revolutionize the world with their scientific gifts. They want to rebuild Chicago, as it is their home, and want to use science to aid in the process.

MAULER TWINS

Monster Girl, once Monster Woman, has the power to shift her form into that of a green monster. However, the adverse effects are detrimental: her age decreases the more times she turns into a monster. Her actual age is 26, but she has the physique of a 12-year-old. She is a formidable force and a member of the new Guardians of the Globe. Amanda has come to terms with her age regression, but things have changed since she met Robot. Robot changed himself into a human, Ruddy, so that he could be with Amanda, as well as figure out a way to stop her age regression. While Amanda appreciates the effort, she wants control over her life and the decisions she makes. Amanda must figure out what she wants from Robot and what she wants for her future. She wants to aid in Chicago's rebuilding by working with the Guardians of the Globe and the Global Defense Agency.

MONSTER GIRL

BLACK SAMSON

Markus Grimshaw, known as his superhero alter ego, Black Samson, is a member of the new Guardians of the Globe. He was once a member of the original Guardians, but left after losing his powers. Once, Black Samson could enhance his physiology and generate electricity. Black Samson takes his role as a superhero extremely seriously, not tolerating immature behavior, especially from Rex. He is courageous, fighting when others lose strength. His lack of powers is a sensitive spot for him, and he ensures that this lack does not interfere with him being a hero. Black Samson hopes to regain his powers, seeking help from the Global Defense Agency. He maintains his goal to stay as a member of the Guardians of the Globe, defending humanity from its worst enemies. He will help rebuild Chicago by defending the people with the Guardians.

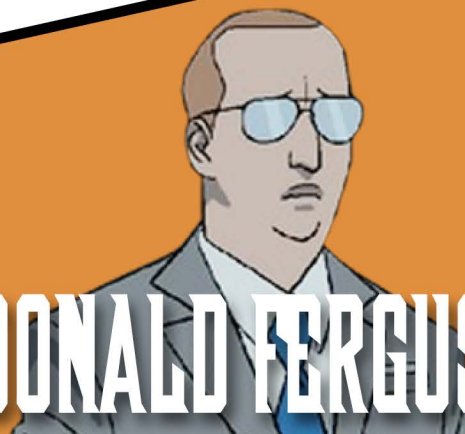

Cecil Stedman is the director of the Global Defense Agency, a paramilitary intelligence organization based beneath the Pentagon, with the task of monitoring and handling global superhuman threats. He partnered with Omni-Man and the original Guardians of the Globe. But after figuring out Omni-Man was the one behind the massacre of the original Guardians, it became Cecil's mission to ensure the safety of the world from Omni-Man, no matter what that looks like. Cecil is not too trusting and has put up many safeguards against impending threats. Knowing Omni-Man is Invincible's father, Cecil aims to control Mark in case Mark decides to join forces with his father. Cecil trusts no one, and no one should trust Cecil. However, Cecil wants to rebuild Chicago by any means necessary, while also preparing for any future potential threats.

CECIL STEDMAN

Donald Ferguon is Cecil Stedman's assistant, an agent of the Global Defense Agency, and a contact for the new Guardians of the Globe. Donald has frequently been put in the line of fire, but has little to no memory of these events and comes back without a scratch from missions that should have landed him in a hospital. He continues to work as a high-ranking member of the GDA because, despite being human, he wants to help people in any way he can. He is known as Cecil's assistant, but has a rebellious streak, often helping superheroes and family with personal issues. Donald is selfless, brave, and intelligent, with his quick thinking a great tool when helping debrief Cecil on missions and situations. He wants to learn more about his seemingly untouchable body and the past choices that have led him to the man he is today. By working alongside Cecil and the GDA, he wants to rebuild Chicago and protect it from future threats.

DONALD FERGUSON

Will Clockwell, best friend of Mark Grayson, is supportive yet sarcastic. He cares greatly about Mark and is astonished when he finds out Mark is Invincible. Will is not afraid of telling the truth when it matters and is steadfast in his will to do what is right. Will also wants to be there for his best friend, Mark, when he needs him as they graduate from high school and move through life. However, something feels off for Will. He is slowly realizing that as he grows older, his body is changing. He's always wanted to be a nurse, but he is finding out that he can mysteriously heal injuries. While interning at a Chicago Hospital, he finds that the little boy with the fractured arm is miraculously healed after Will saw him. The soccer player with the torn Achilles is already walking without a limp. Will wants to seek help from Mark and the Global Defense Agency to see if these are possibly new superhealing powers. Will hopes he can use his powers to help those who were injured in the destruction of Chicago.

Olga, born in Moscow, Russia, was the wife of the late Red Rush, who was a member of the original Guardians of the Globe and a victim of Omni-Man's massacre. Olga is a tough woman who loved her deceased husband, but she wishes he had slowed down to spend time with her. She worked internationally for the management of a marketing firm, and continuously received promotions due to her phenomenal leadership skills. Olga is picking up the pieces of her life after her husband's death. She must figure out what her next steps are, whether that is going back to Russia or staying in Chicago. Olga has deep roots in Russia, especially in the superhero community there. Her marriage to Red Rush gave her connections to the Global Defense Agency's branch in Russia. Olga wants to help rebuild Chicago in some way, specifically with her leadership skills and allies in Russia's superhero community.

Rex Sloan is the powerful superhero Rex Splode, with the ability to generate explosive energy. Rex is argumentative and reckless, which often backfires on him. He cheated on his ex-girlfriend Eve with Dupli-Kate and finds himself in risky situations. He's learning to be a better team player, but he does want most of the glory for himself. By playing the devil's advocate, he has somehow gained the trust of Cecil Stedman and the Global Defense Agency. With Chicago in shambles, this is his big break into being its greatest savior, and he intends to take on a more defensive role in rebuilding Chicago, as his powers are better suited to defending against evil.
